

Testimonial..

Having moved from the close knit community of Browns Well when it closed at the end of 2007, the Loxton Lutheran school provided me and my family with an equally close knit, caring environment. Fostering within me a respect for both my work and others, this positive culture was an essential element in the development of my determination to do my best and my willingness to help others.

In many forms, support was always readily available. Whilst I am no longer at the Lutheran school, and as such have almost completed my schooling, I know that this support is still available; be it a cheery wave as I pass a previous teacher down the street, or a willingness to provide information for an assignment.

Without a doubt, I can confidently say that the Loxton Lutheran School was an invaluable contributor to my personal and educational success.
